Under the provisions of the act to this effect to be submitted to the provincial legislature, a superintendent of public health will be appointed who will be the head of a health branch under the jurisdiction of the provincial secretary, who is a member of the provincial cabinet. The public health service of the Province was stated to be at present in charge of a superior board of health composed of physicians, some of whom are members of the legislature.

The Government's estimate for health work for 1922 in the Province was stated to be $200,000.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.

Smallpox.¹

Information relative to the prevalence of smallpox in the Dominican Republic, received under date of February 7, 1922, shows that during the month of October, 1921, there were 653 cases with 54 deaths.

It is reported that the disease broke out during the summer of 1921 in epidemic form along the Haitian-Dominican border, and that the frontier was immediately closed and the inhabitants of this zone were subjected to compulsory vaccination. This measure is stated to have proved very effective, and the disease is said to have left the frontier and to have traveled eastward. During January and the first week in February it was particularly severe in the Provinces of Puerta Plata, Santiago, La Vega, and Santo Domingo.

According to information dated January 31, 1922, the number of cases present in the Puerta Plata district was estimated at about 20,000, with more than 1,000 deaths. At Puerta Plata more than 400 cases were reported with more than 20 deaths (population, 7,500). At Santiago, with a population of 15,000, 2,000 cases were reported and more than 100 deaths. Statistics of prevalence of smallpox in the smaller towns and rural districts have not been received, but it was stated that the disease was as prevalent and as virulent as in the larger centers.

It was stated that early in the month of January, 1922, the supply of vaccine in the Republic became exhausted, and several weeks elapsed before fresh stocks could be secured.

Economic conditions are reported to be distressing in the north central part of the Republic, and the opinion is expressed by persons connected with the Department of Sanitation that lack of sufficient nourishing food has reduced the resistance of many of the people of this section.
